Price Evolution²

Risk factors

The sub-fund is characterized by low volatility in its net asset value (NAV) per share, driven by the significant weight of bonds in the portfolio and the low correlation between bond and equity markets. Its NAV per share will fluctuate in line with price movements in the euro-denominated investment-grade bond market and in the mid- and large-cap European equity markets, in which the sub-fund targets a 75% allocation and may invest up to a maximum of 25%, respectively.

The investor is exposed to only limited currency risk, as bond investments are exclusively denominated in EUR. However, currency risk remains for equity investments denominated in GBP, CHF, SEK, DKK, and NOK. The NAV per share of the sub-fund is subject to low volatility, and a loss of invested capital remains possible in the short and medium term.

As the sub-fund may invest a minority portion in emerging markets, investing in the sub-fund may entail a higher degree of risk due to the political and economic conditions in those markets, which may affect the value of investments.
